2017 Vintage : Great challenges, yet beautiful wines : Quel terroir !

Following a mild winter, bud burst happened relatively early, around mid-March. Unfortunately, soon after, temperatures dropped and gave way to frost on the Bordeaux vineyard.

Monbrison, known for its great terroir, was slightly affected on the night of April 27th. Growth cycle of the vine was somewhat slowed, however between May 18th and 29th, bloom went very well.

The vine, this tenacious plant, has continued to grow ... Indeed, on some plots affected by frost, winegrowers have had to give more of their time in order to carry out a meticulous work within the vineyard.

Veraison began during the month of July to end around August 7th.

This 2017 vintage had a relatively low rainfall.

We were lucky enough to get some wonderful Merlot, which were crushed on September 18th and 19th.

The Cabernet Sauvignon came in the week of September 26th in a beautiful quality.

In 2017, despite a minimal loss of yield, the quality of the wines remains at the height of our great Margaux wine!
